Membership Update

February

From the Membership Director, Gretel Coursol: I would like to repeat for renters or those members who are late renewing, if your CAM number or other information has changed since you first joined Grand Computers, you might need to have your password reset. Contact me if that has happened to you (membership@grandcomputers.org)

There are still a few people who do not know that dues are $20 per person. Unless you join or renew using Pay Pal, you must still fill out a white membership envelope at the monitor's desk. As of January 26, there are 748 active members. Of those, 120 are MAC users. So far in January, 31 members have joined or renewed using PayPal.

I wish you all a Happy and Healthy New Year. Gretel.

EDUCATION UPDATE

Class registrations for the Winter/Spring session have been very encouraging in that they have been about equal to this same time one year ago. Income received for class registrations is 25.5% through PayPal and 74.5% from club registrations, of which 65% was received from the registration held on January 4&5, 2008. Total registration income now stands at $7200 for this session. Club members are continuing to register for open classes. We receive several registrations using the Green envelope each day.

Most of our time recently has been devoted to updating the Instructors Manual to include documentation of the operation of our education system as well as helpful information for instructors. It also includes the timeline for Fall 2008 education classes and events. For more info, email education@grandcomputers.org

Winter class registration on Saturday, January 5, was very successful for the club.

A LOOK AT A GRAND COMPUTER VOLUNTEER: JOYCE KLONCZ

Joyce is the current secretary of the Grand Computer Club and also the Grand Macs SIG facilitator and an instructor of Mac classes. She edits the newsletter for the Grand Computer Club and Grand Macs SIG.

She was born in Brainerd, Minnesota, one of a set of triplets, plus she has an older sister and brother. Joyce attended the University of Minnesota for three years and then finished her degree in Oklahoma where her husband, Lenny, was stationed in the Air Force. She was a substitute teacher for ten years while they raised their two sons. In 1973, she began teaching full-time in the same school and same room where she had attended as a fifth grader. Deja vu! She took a sabbatical leave and earned her Masters of Education in 1985.

Joyce spent twenty-six years teaching, first as an elementary teacher; then as an elementary science specialist; then as a K-12 curriculum resource teacher in science and mathematics. She became very interested in portable planetariums and took a 3-week astronomy institute at Berkeley and the Lawrence Hall of Science. She came back to Minnesota and wrote grants to provide a Starlab Portable Planetarium for a consortium of 14 Minnesota metro districts. She fund-raised with Medtronic Corporation, Land O' Lakes, Alliant TechSystems, Northern States Power and Cray Research. She then trained hundreds of teachers in the use of Starlab, providing each with a curriculum binder full of teaching techniques. Twelve of those original districts ended up purchasing their own Starlab and making it a critical part of their science program.

In 1993, she was awarded the Portable Planetarium Educator of the Year award and was presented this award at the International Planetarian Society's Annual Meeting in Florida. She was named her district's Teacher of the Year in 1990 and was one of seven finalists for Minnesota Teacher of the Year.

Joyce became involved with her local historical society in Minnesota as a charter member in 1980. She filled roles as its president, secretary, and board member since that time. In 2002, she wrote a hard-cover book for the society, entitled A Pictorial History, New Brighton, Minnesota, From 1880-1950; and in 2005 she followed that with A Pictorial History, New Brighton, Minnesota, From 1950s-2000s. Over 1500 photos were scanned for the two books. Both books continue to be a major fundraiser for the society.

In 1998, Joyce retired from teaching and in 1999 Lenny retired with 32 years working for 3M. They moved to their townhouse on Lake Mille Lacs in Minnesota in 2000, and built their home in Sun City Grand that same fall.

Joyce is also interested in genealogy and has researched her family and her husband's family. She helped form the Minnesota Interest Group in 2004 here in Sun City Grand and is the membership director for the University of Minnesota Alumni Association, West Valley, Arizona branch.

Her four grandchildren, ages 5,7,12, and 14, and her two sons and two daughters-in-law, are a source of joy for her and her husband and one reason they travel to Minnesota for the summer.
